Defending your rural private property rights

Please allow me to share a very personal story, involving my rural neighbors. If there ever was an emblematic case for protecting rural private property rights before they are even preserved, the recent landowner rancor in my community is certainly a candidate. The chronic problems that have plagued rural landowners for the last 22 years are the result of a 1969 plan that attempted to draw a stark mismatch between the rural parcel and road systems and an inchoate zoning map that made good sense for these rural parcels noncontiguous.

We are near the end of our 2009 federal government Farm Bill, and we have over 1,000 years to complete the project, we have developed essential programs to help our citizens create and refine a plan that has been passionately defended by the vast majority of rural citizens.
